Stonegate-Riverside: a plan for a thousand acres:

Davis developer negotiating property rights in ambitious scheme to develop major chunk of West Sacramento

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A single plan from a Davis developer could spur construction of 3,400 housing units on a thousand acres in West Sacramento's southern half.

The "Stonegate-Riverside" plan comes from Al Smith, who developed the "Stonegate" subdivision in Davis a quarter century ago. The West Sacramento plan counts on gaining the rights to develop acreage owned by a number of different landowners east of the railroad tracks in the Southport area, and ranging from Linden Road to about a mile south of Davis Road.

The plan calls for a lake, a golf course and a marina among its amenities. Homes and businesses would cluster in "villages" similar to those envisioned in the early 1990s by the city's Southport Framework Plan. But the plan also calls for re-drawing some of these development lines.

City planning director Stephen Patek said his office has no formal application for the project, but that it has heard about the Stonegate-Riverside proposal and is "receptive" to it.

Smith's "Stonegate" development in Davis includes 1,800 units, a 16-acre lake, and tennis courts, pools and a sauna. Amenities are supported by a homeowners association.

A source close to the West Sacramento plan reports that an even more extensive collection of amenities is planned for the West Sacramento development's homeowners association – at prices the backers hope will rival the $33 per month fee paid by Davis residents of Stonegate. The West Sacramento plan could include provisions for senior citizen care, child care, home maintenance and Internet connection through a homeowners group.

Smith declined to comment for this article, saying a statement was "premature."

Insiders report that the acquisition of land rights for the project is not complete, but is advanced. Development financing has been arranged with an out-of-state firm.

Power & ethanol plants: gone?—

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

A proposal to bring a natural gas-fired power plant and an ethanol-producing plant to the Port of Sacramento may be dead.

The power company Ameresco pursued a site at the port last year, after California experienced a severe energy crunch. While drawing opposition from some city residents, Ameresco later downsized its plans, and then told port officials that it was considering a proposal that linked it to an unnamed ethanol plant at the same proposed location.

One city insider reports that the ethanol plant is facing financial problems. Ameresco's local consultant referred inquiries to Ameresco, which has not returned phone calls from the News-Ledger.

Port director John Sulpizio reports that the proposal has moved off the front burner.

"Maritime Trust Corporation (a port consultant) tells me that the company Ameresco has gone into business with has gone into a holding pattern because of business issues which I know nothing about," said Sulpizio. "I do not consider it an active proposal."

THE SACRAMENTO RIVER CATS have returned to Raley Field in West Sacramento for spring practice. The triple-A affiliate of the Oakland A's baseball team plays its first home game mid-month.

State of the City: 'excellent'

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Sunlight streamed over the Sacramento skyline, across the river and through the picture windows of the atrium in the heart of West Sacramento's "ziggurat" building, shining on a couple of hundred people who attended the annual "State of the City" breakfast and address Monday morning.

The mood of the visitors was at least as sunny as the weather outside.

West Sacramento's mayor, Bill Kristoff, received a standing ovation when he approached the podium for his "state of the city" address, and reported that "the state of the city is, in a word, excellent."

"This is our 15th anniversary as the City of West Sacramento, and we still have four distinct districts," said Kristoff, "but we now have a distinct identity as well."

Kristoff cited long-term progress in the city including an improved water plant, "the best flood protection in the region," a master-plan for the Southport area, improvements to Harbor Blvd., the construction of the Daniel C. Palamidessi Bridge, and other accomplishments as evidence of the health of West Sacramento.

He also praised City Manager Joe Goeden, who is set to retire shortly. Goeden wouldn't be around to see the completion of the city's 64,000 square foot civic center project, said Kristoff.

"Just remember, Joe," said Kristoff, "all of your hard work making the civic center happen will be appreciated by someone else sitting in that great office that could have been yours."

Kristoff made references to the Kiewit Pacific construction project and a proposed local Indian gaming casino as among the issues now facing West Sacramento, but he did not indicate his position on either proposal.

Congressman Mike Thompson, State Senator Michael Machado and Assemblywoman Helen Thomson were among the invited guests – and several gave a push to plans for creating a state park and governor's residence on West Sacramento's riverfront

"I happen to think a governor's residence and state park here would be a tremendous anchor for the community," said Thomson.

Master of Ceremonies Dan Kennedy of the Business Journal, and State Sen. Machado praised West Sacramento as a dynamic place.

"West Sacramento is a vibrant city," said Machado. "You're doing some excellent things, with the River Cats (baseball team and stadium), with what's happening in your business community, and with the leadership you are taking with the quality of life along the Sacramento River."

A number of West Sacramento businesses and organizations honored by making "top 25" lists in the Business Journal – for size, number of employees or other criteria – were featured guests.

The event was sponsored by the West Sacramento Chamber of Commerce, and hosted by chamber president Denice Edgar.

Thorny night for city council

By Steve Marschke
News-Ledger Editor

Mayor Bill Kristoff said his mind is still open on the issue of whether a "simple" city permit ought to be offered to Kiewit Pacific, which hopes to build part of a new Bay Bridge at a West Sacramento facility.

"We'll listen to all the testimony," said Kristoff. "I've been on the city council for 15 years. All the council members I've worked with have astutely listened to the questions and listened to the community, and determined in their opinion what's best for the community."

He added that the issue of the project's possible job generation won't play a role in his vote on whether it should need a "conditional use permit" for a chance to go forward.

"I would say, no, it doesn't," Kristoff commented yesterday. "The issue before everybody is whether the casting of concrete is producing a 'building material', or the manufacturing of a building equipment or product."

That zoning question is to be answered by the council tonight in front of a packed house of citizens lobbying for and against the construction plant. The answer will determine whether the project is a "permitted" use at the Port of Sacramento, or whether it would require special city approval. Both the project's major supporters -- labor unions – and its major detractors – a local citizens group – have announced they will be mobilizing their supporters to go to the council meeting.

Attorney Kimber Goddard, a West Sacramento resident and a vice president of the West Sacramento Quality Urbanization and Development (WS-QUAD) group, has asked for a trial-like "evidentiary hearing" for the appeal. Citing the city's own municipal codes, Goddard and city attorney Robert Murphy have been negotiating on issues including the swearing-in of witnesses and presentation of evidence.

WS-QUAD alleges that the project requires a "conditional use permit" from the city, and is not a "permitted use" as earlier declared by the city planning commission. The group also says the planners made that decision improperly, in a meeting tainted by intimidation by union members.

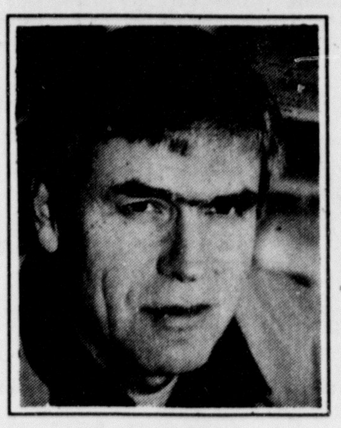
The city, in response to the possibility of a very large crowd, has moved tonight's meeting to the Our Lady of Grace school auditorium at 1990 Linden Road to accommodate the expected large crowd. The city council chambers at 1350 Halyard Drive can hold fewer than 100 people.

The public hearing over the cement casting plant will be scheduled for 8:30 p.m. The council at 7 p.m. will deal with a proposal to finance installation of a sewer system at the Arlington Oaks subdivision, which is one of the last enclaves of city homes still using septic tanks. Residents of the subdivision will have a chance to object to the proposal with their votes.

"I'm really excited about Arlington Oaks," said Kristoff. "We have received some negative votes, but I think it will overwhelmingly pass."

How good were you at listening to your mother?

My Back Pages



By Daryl Fisher

It's really pretty amazing how much we all learn from our mothers, even when we're not completely aware of it. And with that in mind, here is a cute little collection of sayings a friend of mine recently e-mailed me that you, too, may have once heard coming from the lips of your own mother. It's called My Mother Taught Me:

My mother taught me about cleanliness being next to godliness when she said, "If you're going to kill each other, do it outside, because I've just finished cleaning."

My mother taught me about the importance of religion when she said, "You better pray that will come out of the carpet!"

My mother taught me about time travel when she said, "If you don't straighten up, I'm going to knock you into the middle of next week!"

My mother taught me about logic when she said, "Because I said so, that's why."

My mother taught me about foresight when she said, "Make sure you wear clean underwear, in case you're in an automobile accident."

My mother taught me about irony when she said, "Keep crying and I'll really give you something to cry about."

My mother taught me about contortionism when she said, "Will you look at all that dirt on the back of your neck."

My mother taught me about stamina when she said, "You just sit right where you're at until you've finished all of your vegetables."

My mother taught me about the weather when she said, "Do you realize that it looks like a tornado just swept through your room?"

My mother taught me about hypocrisy when she said, "If I've told you once, I've told you a hundred times -- don't exaggerate!"

My mother taught me about the beautiful circle of life when she said, "Your father and I brought you into this world, and we can take you out."

My mother taught me about behavior modification when she said, "Stop acting like your father!"

My mother taught me about envy when she said, "There are millions of less fortunate children in this world who don't have wonderful parents like you do."

My mother taught me about the downside of anticipation when she would say, "You just wait until your father gets home."

My mother taught me about medical science when she said, "If you don't stop crossing your eyes like that, I'm telling you, they are going to freeze that way."

My mother taught me to always think ahead when she said, "If you don't pass your spelling test, you'll never be able to get a good job."

My mother taught me about ESP when she said, "Put your sweater on; don't you think I know when you're cold?"

My mother taught me the importance of knowing about mechanical things when she said, "When that lawn mower cuts off your toes, don't come running to me."

My mother taught me how to solve physics problems when she said, "If I yelled that a meteor was coming toward you, would you listen then?"

My mother taught me about the impossible when she said, "Okay, that's enough talking -- I want you to close your mouth and eat your dinner."

My mother taught me you always have to listen carefully to others if you want to understand them when she said, "If you fall out of that swing and break your neck, you're not going to the store with me."

My mother taught me about the mystery of sex when she said, "How do you think you got here?"

My mother taught me about genetics when she said, "From the day you were born, you have been just like your father!"

My mother taught me that it's better to give than receive when she said, "You just wait until we get home."

My mother taught me about my roots when she said, "Close that door! Do you think you were born in a barn?"

My mother taught me about the wisdom of age when she said, "When you get to be as old as me, then you'll understand."

And my mother taught me that there is indeed justice in this world when she said, "Someday, you know, you'll have kids, too, and I hope they turn out just like you."

CAPITOL RESORT HOTEL CASINO

You've heard from us.

Now hear what your neighbors have to say.

As a West Sacramento resident, I was concerned about the proposed casino's impact on our neighborhoods. The developers have taken the time to answer my questions and have convinced me that the project will help our community.

The casino will be located right off of I-80 at Reed Avenue. It is a light industrial area with no nearby homes or schools. The city's traffic engineers do not think there will be any increased traffic on residential roads. Some road improvements will be needed in the immediate area, and the developers have agreed to pay for those.

I also took the time to get educated about the impact Indian gaming has had on other communities. I found out that my image of Indian gaming casinos is outdated. Indian gaming is closely regulated. Other cities report no increase in illegal activity. The Pomo Indians have teamed up with respected businessmen whose goal is to build a clean, safe facility for adults only. The casino will be contributing $6 million to the community each year – $2 million of it to pay for increased fire and police protection for all of us.

With these assurances in place, I feel comfortable supporting the Capitol Resort Hotel Casino.

Rachel Martinez
West Sacramento Resident

The Sacramento region always seems to have plenty of jobs for high-paid professionals and minimum-wage fast food workers. It's the folks in the middle who always seem to get squeezed. For people like us, the proposed casino in West Sacramento is the best news we've heard in years.

The casino will be hiring more than 1,500 people and giving preference to people who live in the area. Most of these jobs will be career jobs with pensions, health care and good wages. These year-round jobs will in turn support thousands of spouses and children.

There will also be hundreds of construction jobs available during the building of the 400-room hotel and casino. The Pomo Indians are already working closely with unions on hiring plans.

It's refreshing to have a new employer move into the area with a commitment to providing well-paying jobs for working men and women. I wish all of our businesses recognized, as the Pomo Indians do, that a stable job means a stable family and community.

Greg Marine
West Sacramento Resident

I remember the days when West Sacramento used to be best known for its seedy motels. Now, it's a different world on this side of the river. Young families are flocking to new housing developments that are just minutes away from their jobs. Raley Field is bringing people from throughout the region to our town. And new riverfront development is making our town more than a commuter suburb, but a real destination in and of itself. We have a chance to keep the momentum going by supporting the new Capitol Resort proposed on Reed Avenue.

The Pomo Indians are working with top developers to create a resort that will be bringing tourists--and their dollars--to our community. A 400-room hotel operated by a nationally respected hotel management firm would attract upscale visitors who will also spend their money in nearby stores and businesses. A modern casino will include restaurants and offer top-name entertainment.

Years ago, who would have dreamed that West Sacramento would be playing host to thousands of baseball fans? Who would have dreamed that residents and tourists alike would have the chance for a destination resort experience without leaving home? Here's hoping all of our dreams come true.

Shirley Hendricks
West Sacramento Resident

Port director honored

From Gary Sandy Communications

John Sulpizio, director of the Port of Sacramento, was honored recently with a "Yolo Champion Award," intended to recognize outstanding service and achievement among county residents.

Sulpizio was nominated in the category of "leaders in industry and agriculture," and the award was presented by Yolo County Supervisor Mike McGowan, who also is a member of the board that governs the port.

"John is known throughout the region for his advocacy of increased trade and his promotion of the Port of Sacramento as an essential partner with agriculture in bolstering our local and regional economy," said McGowan.

Sulpizio, a West Sacramento resident, is a graduate of Cornell University and joined the port in 1987, becoming director in 1996. He is a past president of the city's chamber of commerce. He has served on the board of the American Association of Port Authorities and most recently completed two terms as chair of the California Association of Port Authorities, representing 11 ports.

Others receiving "Yolo Champion" awards were the founders of the Davis Area Technology Association; Woodland farmer Jim Leathers; Martin, Jack and Dennis Mariani of the Mariani Nut Company in Winters; and the Yolo Land Trust.

SPORTS INSIDER

By Richard Novoa

"Men's NCAA Basketball Tournament"

The Maryland Terrapins (32-4) knocked off Kansas and Indiana on Easter weekend to win the 2002 College Basketball championship. Maryland was led to final dance by the tournament MVP, Juan Dixon, and the relentless Terps defense.

Dixon already had become the leading scorer in Maryland history, and his average of 27.4 points a game in the first five tournament games were an essential part of the longest run in Terrapins history. Juan Dixon was the dominating factor that led me to finally pick a winner in the NCAA Tournament. Mr. Dixon will be a first round draft pick in this year draft and a shooting star in the NBA.

It was Maryland's defense held the Hoosiers (25-12) to only 9 points in the final 10 minutes of the game that help bring home Maryland's first national title. Maryland blew a 22-point lead in last year's semifinal loss to Duke that incited Maryland students to riot causing over $500,000 damage to the campus. This year after a long awaited championship the students started bonfires, threw bottles and destroyed property again!

"Kings Korner"

The Sacramento Kings (53-19), who continue winning on the road, are still on their East Coast swing. The purple, silver and black beat Houston, Charlotte and Atlanta in four days. The Kings are 7-1 in their last eight road games. Sacramento is still holding on to slim 1 ½ game lead on the Lakers with the playoffs only three weeks away.

Sacramento, the Los Angeles Lakers and Dallas all have a realistic shot at the best record, with the other five playoff spots in the Western Conference being taken up by San Antonio, Minnesota, Portland, Seattle and Utah. The Jazz have a 4 ½ game lead on the ninth-place Los Angeles Clippers. If the playoffs were to start tomorrow the Kings would be hosting their buddy Karl Malone and the Utah Jazz!

The race for the best record could go down to the final day of the regular season when the Lakers host the Kings. The Kings have the NBA's best home court record at 33-4 while Dallas has the best road record at 24-12.

The Kings still have to play three more games on the road in four days before their return home to face the Knicks on April 7th (6 p.m.). The Kings will play Memphis, Detroit and their old-buddies, the Utah Jazz on Friday night (6:00 p.m-ch.31).

"Major League Baseball"

The season opened on a positive note Monday night for the Oakland A's as they pick up the pieces from their heartbreaking playoff loss to the New York Yankees last season. The A's used a strong pitching performance by Mark Mulder and a home run by A's newcomer, David Justice, to beat Texas 8-3 before 43,908 fans. The A's are at home for three games against the Rangers before they travel to Seattle for a weekend series against last year's division champions.

The Giants will open their season in Los Angeles against the Dodgers on Tuesday night. The Giants home opener will be on Friday, April 5th (1:05 p.m.) against the San Diego Padres.

The Giants picked up a few new players to patch up their old weaknesses. The G-Men added David Bell at third base and slick fielding, Tsuyoshi Shinjo (Joe) to patrol centerfield. Barry Bonds, who slammed a record 73 homers last year, signed a five-year, $90 million contract that will allow him to finish his career in his hometown but will the Giants' slugger every win his World Series title. Time is running out for Dusty Baker and the G-Men to produce that World Series ring!

"Boxing"

Don Chagrin's boxing show last Friday at the Radisson was a roaring success as a sold-out crowd of over 1,200 fans enjoyed a great night of boxing. Eric Regan and Michael Simms won their bouts but little Danny Savala Jr. stole the show with his impressive pro debut knockout of Marcelino Borjorquez of Lakeside. The main event was everything the promoter promised the local boxing fans. IBA champion, Efren Hinojosa retained his title against the challenger Ernie Zavala in a bout that went toe-to-toe for 12 grueling rounds.

The next boxing show will be an ESPN doubleheader slated for Thursday, May 16th (Juan Lazcano) and Friday, May 17th (Willie Jorrin-championship fight) at the Memorial Auditorium.

See ya next week!

OPINION

News-Ledger Editorial

Can you spare three bucks?

For several months, a local supermarket checker and some other concerned people have been working hard to raise money for a West Sacramento boy's needed heart transplant. Essentially, the fifteen-year old needs to have $100,000 on hand to cover medical expenses when a transplant comes available.

Michael's condition isn't yet critical, but it will be. His current heart isn't expected to last too long; his father died of a similar heart problem at a young age.

But West Sacramento's response to this appeal for help has not, quite frankly, been overwhelming. In this city of around 35,000 people, about $11,000 has been raised so far. This money represents the generosity of a fairly small group of people. It will take the generosity of many more to save a boy's life.

What it will take is about three dollars per person.

Donations to the trust fund can be made at any Wells Fargo Bank branch, payable to "COTA for Michael" in trust fund #1044101069. Small donations can also be left in collection containers at such West Sacramento locales as Safeway and La Bou.

MICHAEL PHILLIPS

Another way to help is to support upcoming fundraising events for Michael at Gorman's Restaurant in Yolo, or a planned dinner and "glow ball golf" benefit being put together by the Rotary Club. Watch this newspaper for details.

Sometimes, tragedy takes us by surprise and we can't do anything about it. Sometimes, you are lucky enough to be able to see it coming, and you can do something about it. Michael Phillips can see it coming, and – with a little help from you – he hopes to beat it.

Three dollars per person is not a lot to ask. Let's take care of this.

Letters to the Editor

Separation of church & state

The News-Ledger editorial of March 27 stated that Mayor Kristoff has requested that a religious invocation be given at city council meetings. I believe that a separation of church and state has been a contributing factor to America's governmental stability and success as a democracy for over 200 years. This separation has promoted tolerance between diverse religious groups as well as those who are not affiliated with any religious group.

The editorial stated that a wide variety of local spiritual leaders would be invited to deliver this invocation. What defines a "spiritual leader"? Who doesn't get invited and who does? Can anyone who considered himself a "spiritual leader" do this? There are those who, in order to conduct business with the city, would feel forced to take part in religious rituals. What if the next mayor doesn't want to have religion included in future city council meetings? I hardly think it would be possible to reverse this practice without some hard feelings and maybe even committing political suicide.

The idea, while seemingly sounding simple enough, and I'm sure suggested with the best intentions, could have the council facing what Pandora did when she opened the box.

DIANE VIRDEE

From chief of police:

In response to the full-page advertisement supporting the proposed Indian gambling casino carried by the News-Ledger on March 27th, I would like to share the following information with the community: This advertisement stated that the proposed casino was supported by, "West Sac cop Marty Flatley". Marty Flatley is a police officer with the West Sacramento Police Department, serving in the Office of Operations as a beat officer. It is important to understand that I support Mr. Flatleys' right to express his personal views about any issue in our community, this is a constitutional guarantee we all enjoy as Americans. I think it is also relevant that Mr. Flatley has lived in West Sacramento for many years and therefore is even more entitled to an opinion about issues that can influence the city and its future. On the other hand, it is not appropriate for Officer Flatley, in his capacity as a sworn member of the police department, to publicly voice a position on a community issue that can be in any way perceived to be the policy or direction of this administration, or the West Sacramento Police Department. As a public officer it is a conflict of interest for any police officer to become embroiled in any community debate that can have an impact on the police department, such as when a major business is considering coming to our city. I have shared this philosophy with my staff and the entire department on many occasions since October 1999. Although I am confident Officer Flatley did not anticipate the presentation of his views to be as robust as published in the paper, it was never the less, not something I can support.

The position outlined in the advertisement does not reflect the police department's position on the proposed project. As the law enforcement agency in this city, the police department is neither for, nor against, the proposed casino. As the chief of police, my only concern is that if the proposed casino becomes a reality, it be designed, constructed and managed in such a fashion that the community residents and visitors will be safe and secure in their person and property while visiting the site. To that end, department staff and myself will participate in the city planning and review process, as we have for many other projects over the years. As appropriate, the department will make recommendations regarding safety, crime fighting environmental improvements and traffic related issues while the proposal proceeds through the city review process.

Chief of Police, West Sacramento

The port provides good jobs

I have worked in West Sacramento since 1968 and bought a home in Southport in 1986. During this time I have worked at the port, at Farmer's Rice Cooperative and as dispatcher and business representative for Local 17 International Longshore and Warehouse Union in Broderick since 1988.

Unlike a few new residents of West Sacramento, I have no hidden agenda. We the members and our families of the I.L.W.U. depend upon the port and several other major employers in West Sacramento for our livelihood. We work hard with our hands and backs daily to put food on our tables and pay the monthly mortgage. A substantial number of our members live in West Sacramento so that they do not have to commute to work. We pay taxes and vote here and expect our city to work for us. We want the Port of Sacramento to bring in new waterborne industries and hope to get a few of the jobs created.

All of that said, let me get to the point. We are part of the Port Labor Alliance and have been politically active to gain support for this severely under utilized transportation infrastructure. For the last few months we have heard a few of our neighbors speaking at port commission meetings, city council meetings and in the press. They have said that they are not trying to shut the port down but are concerned about dirty industries located there. They say that they represent the people of West Sacramento. I submit that neither is true. The same group prematurely opposed any of the potential industries that showed interest in the port and they certainly do not represent the views of any of the residents I have had the opportunity to meet in the last 16 years.

Then there was the planning commission meeting on March 14. I am the guy that took the pictures of my members, some labor leaders, and a couple of ex-mayors. These

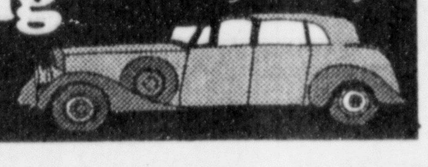
DINING, TRAVEL & ENTERTAINMENT

Touring with Teddi

by Teddi Boylan



West End Bar (formerly Fulton's Prime Rib) is located at the corner of 2nd and I streets in Old Sacramento. The present owner has had the bar and restaurant for the past three years, but still has the Fulton signs up on the street. When asked why, he said it was so people could find it easier. I wonder, though, if it isn't to capitalize on the "established in 1972" reputation of Fulton's.

There have been some changes made, but the English hunting scenes from Fulton's time still hang on the bar's green walls. The outside patio was crowded at 1 p.m. on Wednesday, and it was primarily tourists and their families taking advantage of the early spring sunshine. One of the major attractions of the old Fulton's was the area under the sidewalk, where some say early opium dens were located. The present owner has installed doors on the openings and apparently is using the space for private dining areas. I can't say for sure, since the present owner (I believe his name is Kevin) is not very open to congenial conversation.

He is a hard-working owner, waiting tables, handling the bar and collecting money, while the only other employees in sight were an older man who doubled as a busboy and the very pretty Connie, who was more efficient and friendly than the owner.

They definitely did not have enough employees, so I wouldn't try having lunch there if you only have an hour. If Connie ever needs a reference for friendliness and good service, though, I would recommend her. It was very pleasant seated on the patio, with a magnificent fountain tinkling in the background. There were only two people dining inside.

I wanted to sample their fare, so I chose the West End Sampler ($11.95), which consisted of filled potato skins, very hot wings, excellent mozzarella and zucchini sticks and various dipping sauces. My friend Pat had a French Dip Sandwich ($8.95). Prices are reasonable for a restaurant in such a heavy tourist area.

Lunch is from $6.75 up. Dinner prices range from $17 for chicken Dijon or an Old Sacramento cut of prime rib to $27 for a West End Cut. Connie brought out a delicious dessert tray, and Pat and I shared a great New York cheesecake. Oh yes – lest I forget, if you like salad, they have a good selection.

Unfortunately, if you are handicapped, you cannot enjoy the West End Bar. The restaurant and patio are below the sidewalk level, and have two wooden staircases as access. I wonder, in this day and age, they are not required to give easy access to people in wheelchairs or who are otherwise disabled.

West End Bar & Grill: 900 Second St., Old Sacramento. 444-9641, closed Mondays.

When in Old Sacramento, my friend Doris Thompson and I found a females' paradise. Naturally, I'm talking about Elegant Illusions – a jewelry store. But oh, what jewelry. Elegant Illusions used to be called Fabulous Fakes in the Pavilion shopping center in Sacramento. Beautiful, beautiful rubies, diamonds, emeralds, necklaces, pins, rings and earrings. Not only impeccable gems, but gorgeous settings.

Ladies, do yourself a favor and gents, do your wives a favor. Go see this fabulous store. I would defy a jeweler and his glass to find any fault with these slightly-less-than-genuine gems.

Elegant Illusions: 131 J St., Old Sacramento, 442-2040.

I heard tell that Morrison's Easter Brunch was a huge success. Not surprising. Morrisons Upstairs/Downstairs is one of the best restaurants in Northern California.

"Michael's bus" is filling up fast, so call the Westside Pub & Grill and let them know you want to go. $60, tax-deductible. Call 372-8897.

Speaking of gambling junkets, "Steppin' Out With Moe" has an overnighter going to Renoon July 11-12, with stops at the Sands, Cal Neva, El Dorado and Circus Circus. Cost is $60 per person, double occupancy, and you get back a total of $23 cash and lots of food. Call Moe Thompson, 373-0065. Must be paid by June 1.

The woman said he had been threatening to stab her, and then stabbed the sign. He was arrested.

pictures are for my union newspaper and were not intended to try and intimidate anyone. I can see why some QUAD members feel intimidated. There they were in the same room with people whose lives would be severely impacted and could lose their jobs if Kimber Goddard and his small group are successful in their hidden agenda. The fact is they were treated with respect and had no reason to fear their neighbors in the room. They chose to sit on the floor, and I chose to stand against the wall by the podium; after all the room was packed. Some of the QUAD members had their children with them, and one of the speakers said that they were concerned about the chocolate eaters, pointing at their kids. Was she trying to imply that the workers in the room don't love and care about their own kids just as much?

I am a grandfather and have many nieces and nephews that live in West Sacramento, and I care deeply about all of our kids. I would like my grandkids to go to college and become successful, but if they choose to work with their hands, I want to make sure they have the opportunity to get a good union job.

I have attended a few of the QUAD meetings and talked to several of our new neighbors. I listened to Mr. Goddard use innuendos, half-truths and distortions about the port to bolster his agenda, political ambitions or whatever he is up to. I do not believe he represents the views of the majority of our neighbors who attended the meetings. I do believe that the only people who would benefit from closing the port would be real estate housing developers.

When my family and I moved to West Sacramento, we were welcomed by the community and I welcome our new neighbors. But please remember that unions are organizations made up of people like you and we are your neighbors. Do not be duped into doing the dirty work of lawyers who went to "Lie School", or law school (take your choice) and learned how to manipulate the law for their own hidden agenda.

EVERETT E. BURDAN

Concerned for children

I wonder how valuable are our children. The cement casting factory that is going to be on 60 acres in the Southport Parkway area is going to be within 2000 feet of our Southport Elementary School. It is going to be even nearer our homes and community. But my concern is the children. Has there been any restriction placed on the factory to limit chemicals such as chemical dust pollution in our air and water? It is too late to find out days and years from now that our children are sick because of our mistakes.

There was a news statement in regards to a town in Nevada. It stated that children were getting leukemia due to chemicals near the school. Our children could be at risk in not for leukemia but for other ailments caused by the pollution of the cement factory.

My children, grandchildren, and your children are very important to me. Our elderly and ourselves are important also. There has been a lot that has been done in our community to improve our city. Will the cement casting factory be one of them?

Thanks

I want to thank all my friends and family who were there for me in my time of need. A special thanks to the firemen and paramedics who went beyond their duty to be so kind while taking me to Kaiser hospital on March 14th. Another special thanks to a man named Lester, for without hesitation, he gave me some things I so badly needed. One more special thanks to Stella, of Stella's Beauty Salon, who after eight hours of work came to my home at 6 p.m. to cut my hair. What a wonderful woman.

Now, for all of the new people moving into West Sacramento, if you can just take a moment to think about it and join in with all the wonderful people of West Sacramento and become a part of our big family feeling, where everyone helps everyone else, you will know what my late husband meant when he used to say, "We're in God's country now."

Thanks West Sacramento.

'Should be interesting'

Big crowds are expected for the April 3rd city council meeting; hence, it will be held at the auditorium of Our Lady of Grace School. Two major items are on the agenda: (1) To proceed with the latest proposal to annex Arlington Oaks to the rest of the city sewer system, and (2) whether to allow the business known as Kiewit Pacific to build and ship from the Port of Sacramento land 70-foot, 750 ton bridge sections for the purpose of rebuilding/rehabilitating the San Francisco Bay Bridge.

If Arlington Oaks folks reject the sewer hookup plan, many in the neighborhood will face health problems caused by an aging system. Many of those folks have resisted paying anything at all for such annexation. For those who figure the rest of us should pay for modernization of their homes, I have this message: Since the market value of what you paid for and can get from homes include whether or not said homes are hooked up to a sewer system (vs. septic tanks), what you get when you sell a hooked-up home will be more than for homes not hooked up to the sewer. So for those who don't want to pay anything now, an assessment should be made soon of the before vs. after hookup. The city pays. Then when the home is resold, it should sell for more. The city should spit the profit, which should result in higher hookup fee for later payment/better health. Put another way, it should cost less by paying up front for this home improvement.

Scheduled for 8:30 p.m. is the proposal to allow the bridge sections to be built in and shipped from the Port of Sacramento. So while the "It's the economy, stupid" rule says it should be permitted, we must also weigh in other factors such as extra noise and air pollution as well as other effects such as those on roads and the potential for injuries.

Sounds like it's going to be a long but interesting city council meeting.

Supporting the plant

After reading all the letters about Kiewit Pacific and the QUAD group, I feel I need to enlighten your readers on how a longtime local resident views this situation. We are a third generation West Sacramento. I come from a longshore family. All of our friends and family live in West Sacramento. I have the same friends since I was in elementary school. If an issue comes to the city council regarding my family's future, you can bet I will be at any meeting. And so will my co-workers and family. I'm sorry if there are so many of us at the meetings, but this is about our livelihood. We don't mean to intimidate anyone. We all spend our money in West Sacramento, our children attend school here, and we plan on staying. We support any decision approving the Kiewit Pacific project.
